Trash cans go high-tech in Rhinebeck

By WILLIAM J. KEMBLE
Correspondent

RHINEBECK — Vil- lage officials have ordered a solar-powered trash-compacting gar- bage can for the vil- lage parking lot on East Market Street in hopes of reducing the number of collections from four times per week to once.

Mayor James Reardon provided said the unit cost $6,500 and will send a text mes- sage to a designated cell phone when it is ready to be emptied.

"Currently, we have small metal baskets, which are inadequate," Reardon said.

"We're going to put this solar-powered trash compactor in there, and we're trying to come up with other locations in the village to put a couple more in," the mayor said. "We're going to do a phased implementa- tion of this over the next several years and hope- fully replace the small trash baskets."

The city of Kingston installed four of the units on Broadway in Midtown in April 2010.

Each compactor in Rhinebeck will have a 50-gallon container for storing waste.

"The one we're put- ting in the parking lot is also going to have recycling bins for news- papers and bottles and cans," Reardon said. The bins, however, "won't be compactors. They are just receptacles."

Reardon said it will be illegal for people to use the compactor for residential trash.

"It is for public use to dispose of coffee cups or bottles or litter," he said.
