NATIVE SPECIES POLLINATOR GARDEN AT NATURE PRESERVE IS THRIVING!

Our Native Species Pollinator Garden and Tiny Food Forest at the Erie Canal Nature Preserve is thriving! Created this past spring and comprised only of native plants, flowers and trees, the garden is providing food and shelter for a variety of bees, butterflies, birds and other pollinators, as well as local wildlife. Plantings include redbud trees, ferns, butterfly weed, and an array of native flowers. It's a perfect day to take a stroll through the garden's path to get an up close view! The Erie Canal Nature Preserve is located along the Erie Canal Towpath trail – a short walk from the Monroe Avenue Bridge or west from the North Main Street Bridge.
